United States Patent [19]

Graham

[11] Patent Number: 4,502,163

[45] Date of Patent: Mar. 5, 1985

[54] HAPTIC FOR INTRAOCULAR LENS

[75] Inventor: William M. Graham, Burton, Wash.

[73] Assignee: Cooper Vision, Inc., Palo Alto, Calif.

[21] Appl. No.: 539,997

[22] Filed: Oct. 7, 1983

[51] Int. Cl.[3] A61F 1/16; A61F 1/24

[52] U.S. Cl. 3/13

[58] Field of Search 3/13, 1

[56] References Cited

U.S. PATENT DOCUMENTS

3,971,073	7/1976	Richards et al.	3/13
3,975,779	8/1976	Richards et al.	3/13
3,996,626	12/1976	Richards et al.	3/13
4,012,823	3/1977	Richards	3/13
4,014,049	3/1977	Richards et al.	3/13
4,025,965	5/1977	Siegmund	3/13
4,143,427	3/1979	Anis	3/13
4,166,293	9/1979	Anis	3/13
4,174,543	11/1979	Kelman	3/13
4,254,511	3/1981	Chase et al.	3/13
4,257,130	3/1981	Bayers	3/13
4,268,921	5/1981	Kelman	3/13
4,285,072	8/1981	Morcher et al.	3/13
4,304,012	12/1981	Richard	3/13
4,316,293	2/1982	Bayers	3/13
4,328,595	5/1982	Sheets	3/13
4,418,431	12/1983	Feaster	3/13
4,437,194	3/1984	Hahs	3/13

OTHER PUBLICATIONS

American Medical Optics, Model PC-80, Posterior Chamber (Knolle) Intraocular Lenses (advertisement) American Medical Optics, American Hospital Supply Corp., 1402 East Alton Ave., Irvine, CA 92714 (4 pages) Sep. 1982.

Primary Examiner—Ronald L. Frinks

Attorney, Agent, or Firm—Christensen, O'Connor, Johnson & Kindness

[57] ABSTRACT

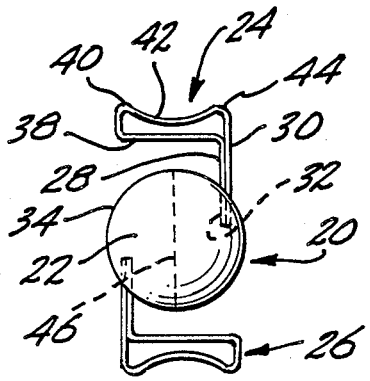
An intraocular lens for placement in the anterior or posterior chamber of the eye after extracapsular surgery has one or more haptics having an asymmetrical cross section. The haptic is formed in a continuous loop. Preferably both ends of the haptic are joined to the optic at a single location. A preferred cross-sectional shape is a major segment of a circle.


13 Claims, 4 Drawing Figures