United States Patent [19]

Deeg et al.

[11] 4,079,470

[45] Mar. 21, 1978

[54] ARTIFICIAL INTRAOCULAR LENS

[75] Inventors: Emil W. Deeg; David A. La Marre, both of Woodstock, Conn.

[73] Assignee: American Optical Corporation, Southbridge, Mass.

[21] Appl. No.: 769,073

[22] Filed: Feb. 16, 1977

[51] Int. Cl.[2] A61F 1/16

[52] U.S. Cl. 3/13; 351/159; 351/167

[58] Field of Search 3/13, 1; 351/159, 160, 351/167

[56] References Cited

U.S. PATENT DOCUMENTS

3,673,616	7/1972	Fedorov et al.	3/13
3,925,825	12/1975	Richards et al.	3/13
3,971,073	7/1976	Richards et al.	3/13
3,996,627	12/1976	Deeg et al.	3/13

OTHER PUBLICATIONS

"A weightless Iseikonic Intraocular Lens" by R. D. Binkhorst et al., American Journal of Ophthalmology, vol. 58, No. 1, July 1964, pp. 73–78.

Primary Examiner—Ronald L. Frinks
Attorney, Agent, or Firm—Howard R. Berkenstock, Jr.

[57] ABSTRACT

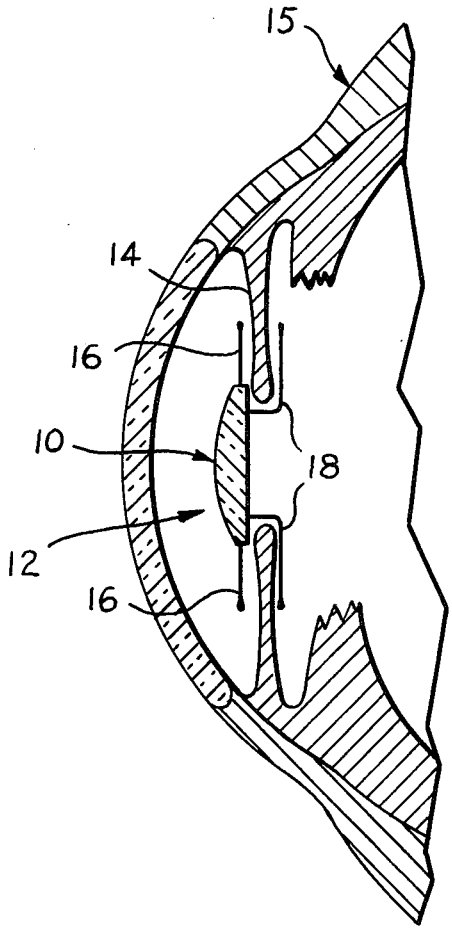
A chemically durable, biologically inert optical implant lens formed of a low density natural or synthetic crystal, such as Corundum, Sapphrie, Ruby, Sircon, Strontium Titanate, Diamond, Anatase or Ruby.


4 Claims, 2 Drawing Figures