

19

a valve for regulating the fluid flow between said optical chamber and said reservoir, and a pump capable of being actuated by an energy source positioned external of the eye for pumping the optical fluid between said reservoir and said optical chamber to modify a volume of said refractive fluid within said optical chamber to adjust a focusing performance of said intraocular lens.

20

* * * * *