

21

39. The memory of claim 38 wherein said custom diagnosis list table further comprises a compilation of standard medical diagnoses.

40. A database having stored therein a plurality of tables for storing medical information, said tables comprising:

- a procedure history table;
- a prescription table; and
- a progress table;

said procedure history table pointing to at least said prescription table and said progress table, said prescription table pointing to said procedure history table and said progress table, and said progress table pointing to said procedure history table and said prescription table.

41. The database of claim 40 wherein said procedure history table further comprises information relating to a compilation of medical procedures.

42. The database of claim 41 wherein said prescription table further comprises information relating to at least one medical prescription order.

43. The database of claim 42 wherein said progress table further comprises information relating to a compilation of evaluations regarding one or more patients.

44. The database of claim 40 further comprising a diagnosis history table, said diagnosis history table pointing to at least said procedure history table.

45. The database of claim 44 wherein said diagnosis history table further comprises information relating to a compilation of medical diagnoses.

46. The database of claim 40 further comprising an allergies table and a patient's information table, said allergies table pointing to said patient information table, and said procedure history table, said prescription table, and said progress table pointing to said patient information table.

22

47. The database of claim 46 wherein said allergies table further comprises information relating to allergic reactions, and said patient information table further comprises personal information relating to one or more particular patients.

48. A method of analyzing tables in a database, said method comprising the steps of:

providing a procedure history table including information relating to a compilation of medical procedures, a prescription table including information relating to at least one medical prescription order, and a progress table including information relating to a compilation of evaluations, said procedure history table pointing to at least said prescription table and said progress table, said prescription table pointing to said procedure history table and said progress table, and said progress table pointing to said procedure history table and said prescription table;

retrieving said information from at least one of said tables;

associating said information from said at least one of said tables with information from another of said tables to produce a screen of associated information; and displaying said associated information.

49. The method of claim 48 further comprising the step of printing said associated information.

* * * * *